AV and IT now merge and overlap so thoroughly that it's difficult to discern where AV ends and IT begins. Audio video integrated systems (also commonly referred to as AVIs) make it easier for businesses and educational facilities to communicate.

AFL's professionals and trusted partners will help you assess your AV needs and analyze available products and services so that you can make the right decisions to address current and future requirements. Whether face-to-face meetings or video conferencing across the country or around the globe, fully integrated AV and IT give all attendees the engaging, informative, and uninterrupted experience you planned and prepared.
